AED Programs – A Nurse’s Perspective

Each day, more than 1,000 people die suddenly—often without any warning—from their heart suddenly stopping. Since this sudden death results from a lethal electrical heart rhythm, the need for early application of measured electrical therapy has long been known and encouraged by the medical community.

Despite tremendous advances in emergency medicine, the percentage of people remaining alive before arriving at the hospital is very low. For those who sustain sudden cardiac arrest (SCA), the sooner they receive measured electrical therapy, the better their chance of many more years of productive life.

The obvious solution to this preventable loss of productive human life is the immediate availability and use of automated external defibrillators (AED). Many people are trained in CPR but CPR only helps the dying heart move blood to the victim’s brain, while an AED reboots the heart’s electrical system, helping the heart return to a state of normal function. AED Solution will help your organization develop an AED program that meets your organization’s needs and requirements. Together we can offer life to a dying person.

While using an AED is very simple, being ready for a life-threatening medical emergency requires a concerted effort of planning, training, evaluation, and ongoing support. AED Solution helps our clients navigate the many pieces to this concerted effort. Placing an AED in any public setting is an essential component of an on-site emergency medical readiness program and an integral part of the fabric of every community’s EMS system.

AED Solution is the AED Program Developer you want for your AED and on-site emergency response program development and maintenance. AED Solution provides turnkey organizational assistance via state of the art medical coaching and training systems. AED Solution uses several tools to help our clients develop a comprehensive training program. Such tools include medical direction, web-based training and record keeping.
